

Struggling with an Antiquated Non-Industry Specific Accounting System?

“The staff at NPT made our decision much easier by always answering questions in a manner that helped us see how each software program would benefit us the most.”

Youth and Family Alternatives, Inc. (Youth and Family) is a private non-profit social service organization in New Port Richey, Florida that operates three runaway youth shelters, provides case management and adoption services for the child welfare system, non-residential counseling services, and programs in local schools.

Youth and Family’s accounting/reporting challenge: An antiquated non-industry specific system with no support or maintenance. Youth and Family used spreadsheets and MOMS, and though they were very proficient with both, the results were less than optimal. The organization needed a system that could provide required reporting for their contracts, software with the flexibility to meet future growth, and a software vendor that could provide dependable support.

Youth and Family decided it was time to purchase new software and began to research several programs, including Sage MIP Fund Accounting. They found NonProfit Technologies (NPT) through the Sage web site and contacted them. The organization chose Sage MIP because of features and price, but NPT was definitely also a deciding factor. The staff at NPT provided insight on what to ask other vendors, and was very helpful in identifying both current and future needs. According to Sheri Novick, Accounting Manager at Youth and Family, “The staff at NPT made our decision much easier by always answering questions in a manner that helped us see how each software program would benefit us the most.”

Youth and Family began using Sage MIP software in the beginning of 2009. Prior to the implementation they met with NPT to set up a chart of accounts and other company information. The full implementation took approximately six months; however, to reduce expenses they chose to do a large portion of the setup and implementation on their own, which extended the normal implementation period. The staff utilized on-line meetings and had NPT staff on site for only two days. The transition went very well. Whenever issues did arise, NPT was always there to answer questions and get them back on track quickly. NPT provided excellent training and Sage offered online product guides and support. The fiscal staff was pleased with this type of learning and support.

“NPT Rocks!!! They have made this extremely stressful transition much more manageable.”

Youth and family is extremely pleased with the purchase and plans to add additional modules to their system in the future as their requirements shift and budget allows. Most of their reporting needs have been met for their contracts, and they are continuing to create custom reports and learning how to use the software most efficiently. They expect to realize a significant savings of both time and money by the end of this fiscal year in June, 2010. They already see a great time savings with memorized and reversing documents.

NPT has had great success in helping organizations previously using MOMS and other generic, non-industry specific software to save time, money, and effort with Sage MIP Fund Accounting Software. Implementations are tailored to an organization's needs. Data can be converted or not, depending on the reliability of legacy system data. Modules can go live all at once, or phased in if it's easier to do so.

Youth and Family would highly recommend NPT and Sage MIP software. They feel like they have created a wonderful partnership with NPT and would definitely use them in the future. Sheri Novick added “NPT rocks!!! They have made this extremely stressful transition much more manageable. In the future we plan on creating a user group with the help of NPT for our local area.”
